Consent form for NewroLogix Neurofeedback

Neurofeedback is the process of training the brain to change metabolisms and blood flow and eventually structure over time.

This procedure is non-invasive, safe and has little or no side effects. Mild dizziness, sleepiness, or fatigue have been experienced by some people but these effects are short term and not dangerous. If symptoms persist after a session, it is recommended that a client seek help with transportation since it is not safe to operate a vehicle while in this state.

Since the Neurofeedback sessions you will undergo consist of 30 minutes of dedicated concentration to achieving a maximized effect, it is important to be on time to your appointments. Should you arrive any later than your scheduled time, the appointment will be shortened and there will be no proration or discounting for a shortened session time.

This service is a PREMIUM SERVICE and appointment times are also at a premium. Missed appointments will be charged at full price unless it is rescheduled within 5 (Five) business days. Keep in mind this may result in 3 visits the following week.
